FOR THE FAMILY:

Tips for Using a Social Story

We use Social Stories to help children know expected behaviors and routines. They are a great tool for any young child; however, they are especially helpful for children who struggle with anxiety and behaviors during transitions and social situations.

How to Use:

1. Personalize the words on each page.
2. Use and print the pages that are in your routine.
3. Make the book with your child.
4. For the first week, read the book every evening and read the book when your child gets up. Use the pages as a reminder for each step.
5. Reread the book as often as you can.
6. Within a week or two, continue to read the book in the evening and only refer to book in the morning.

It takes time for a child to develop a new routine, and it will not always go smoothly. With practice, you will find a rhythm in your routine.

Personalize the Words

Social stories work best when they reflect your family's routine. Personalize the pages before printing.

Make a Book

First, personalize and print pages then reorder the pages to match your family's routine. Use the blank page to add any missing steps. Lastly, bind book with staples or place pages in page protectors and bind with string.

Add Pictures

Use the space provided to add pictures that support the words. You can have your child draw the pictures or you can take pictures of your child doing each skill, print the pictures, and add them to the pages.

When I open my eyes, I say good morning.

(e.g. I say, "Good morning, Dad!")

(Draw a picture of you saying good morning.)

Sometimes, I feel tired in the morning. When I am tired, I can

(e.g. say "I need a hug." / say "I am feeling tired." / stretch my body.)

(Draw a picture of you tired.)

I get dressed for the day. If I need help, I say, "Can you help me?"

(e.g. Sometimes mom will choose an outfit for me, and I say, "Thank you!" or "Can I choose tomorrow?")

(Draw a picture of you getting dressed.)

I have breakfast. Yum!

(e.g. My choices are...)

(Draw a picture of you eating breakfast.)

I brush my teeth.
